"Believe Me, Xantippe" at Poli's Is 100 Per Cent Perfect Play

Comedy One of Most Amusing and Entertaining Ever Seen in National Capital-Roles Seem to Have Been Written Especially For Poli Players.

"Believe Me, Xantippe," the much fact, there has never been a piay staged at Roll's that so exactly fitted the Poli on the Poli stage this week, probably is cast of players. Had Fred Ballard had the most unique play that ever apthe Poli company of Washington in mind peared before the footlights.

Usually an absolutely perfect production of any kind is insipid because of its perfection. We all down in our hearts despise the good boy because his manners are so perfect and he is such a model child. So when the $5.000 prize was awarded to Fred Ballard by the University of Harvard because "Belleve Me, Xantippe" was 100 per cent perfect, according to the rules laid down for the writing of plays, the average human being would expect to find a drama that failed to satisfy because it had no imperfections.
